Insurance-based income solution

What will your retirement look like?

Add life to your business

You've worked, planned, saved and invested, but you're still not sure you'll have enough money for the retirement you've envisioned. So what do you do?

With an insurance-based income solution (IBIS), you may be able to protect your family's future through a death benefit while you save for retirement with the same product.

Be sure to choose a product that meets long-term life insurance needs, especially if personal situations change — for example, marriage, birth of a child or job promotion. Weigh objectives, time horizon and risk tolerance, as well as any associated costs, before investing. Market volatility can lead to the need for additional premium in the policy. Variable life insurance has fees and charges that include underlying fund expenses and costs that vary with sex, health, age and tobacco use. Riders that customize a policy to fit individual needs usually carry an additional charge.

Helping you save for the retirement you've imagined

For many people, the savings offered by qualified plans alone may not provide enough funds to maintain their current standard of living in retirement.

An IBIS can provide a more rounded plan for the future.

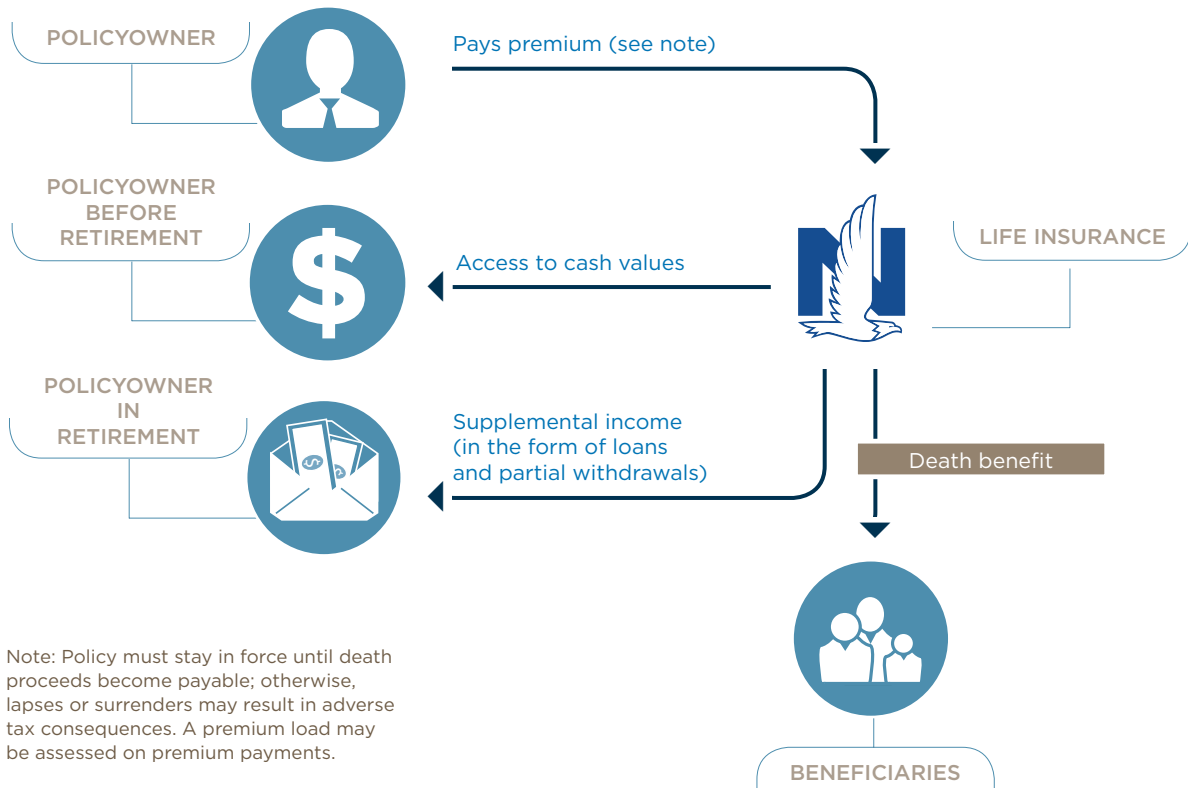

How it works

An IBIS provides life insurance coverage to help protect your family, and the death benefit is paid federal income tax free (it may even be estate tax free, if properly planned). In addition to the life insurance coverage provided, the IBIS allows you to invest additional money in the contract where it has the potential to grow tax deferred.

An IBIS also offers the ability to take tax-free income from the policy — as long as the policy remains in force and is not a modified endowment contract (MEC). Though commonly used to help supplement retirement income, withdrawals and/or loans from the policy can be used for other purposes, too.

Benefits of an insurance-based income solution

Tax advantages

- Withdrawals and loans from the policy can provide tax-free income, provided the policy is not a MEC
- Cash value grows on a tax-deferred basis, and if the policy is held until death, there is no income tax on the cash value or death benefit
- No pre-59½ withdrawal penalties
- No required minimum distributions at age 70½
- There are no contribution limits like qualified retirement plans
- There's no impact on existing qualified plans — you can have a qualified plan and an IBIS

Potential for safety

- Death benefits provide basic insurance protection for you and your family
- The income tax-free death benefit transfers wealth to your beneficiaries, and if properly structured, may also be excluded from your taxable estate

Flexibility

- A variety of optional features and riders help you personalize the policy even more; these are available at an additional cost, and not every rider or option is available in every state
- One premium covers both your life insurance protection and supplemental income needs
- Some products offer the ability to make investment choices through an assortment of investment options, allowing you to be as aggressive or conservative as you wish

Control

- You choose the amount of insurance you want within qualifying limits
- You choose the amount of premium you will pay and the frequency and timing of the payments
- You choose when to make withdrawals and how much they will be

Meet Paul and Vivian

All of the characters are fictitious, meant to represent typical individuals in typical business situations. The example is designed to demonstrate one possible solution to a complex problem. You should work carefully with your investment professional to determine the solution that best meets your specific needs and objectives.

Their story

Paul and Vivian, both in their early 40s, are an active and successful couple with two children. They enjoy the kind of success that brings with it family vacations and a nice home. They have a vision that they're working toward for their retirement, but they're not completely sure how to get there.

Paul and Vivian work together in their own law practice. Every year they contribute the maximum amount allowed to their qualified retirement plan.

They've done well with their current retirement planning, but they need to save more to maintain their current lifestyle. More importantly, they need to protect their children should something happen to either one, or both, of them. Perplexed about how to reach both of these goals, they call Bill, their investment professional.

Their strategy

Because they need life insurance, Bill tells them about an insurance-based income solution (IBIS) that uses a life insurance policy from Nationwide. This strategy offers both the death benefit protection they need and the opportunity to accumulate supplemental income for later in life.

With an IBIS, Paul and Vivian feel in control knowing they have protected their family from the unexpected AND planned for retirement.

Throughout this brochure, we discuss access to money via loans and partial withdrawals. This assumes the contract qualifies as life insurance under section 7702 of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) and is not a modified endowment contract (MEC) under section 7702A. As long as the contract meets non-MEC definitions under section 7702A, most distributions are taxed on a first-in/first-out basis. Loans and partial withdrawals from a MEC will generally be taxable, and if taken prior to age 59½, may be subject to a 10% tax penalty.
